Van Lanschot Kempen Investment Management releases Stewardship and Sustainable Investment Report 2025

Amsterdam/'s-Hertogenbosch, the Netherlands, 26 March 2026

Van Lanschot Kempen Investment Management today publishes its Stewardship and Sustainable Investment Report 2025. The report offers clients, shareholders and other stakeholders a detailed insight in our approach to sustainable investments during the year.

Erik van Houwelingen, Member of the Management Board and responsible for Investment

Management Clients: “2025 saw a great deal of turbulence. Shifts in international relations had a major impact, including on sustainability views and on our investment portfolios. Investors are called to straddle movements that sometimes appear to be pulling in opposite directions: on the one hand, we’re witnessing one natural disaster after another and feeling the growing urgency to become more sustainable, while, on the other, there’s a renewed focus on fossil energy and an increasing need to invest in safety and autonomy. Polarisation sometimes seems to be widening the gap between the two views ever further, and with it the need to navigate.

“In this complex landscape, we’re here for our clients: together we set that course towards their long-term goals. As active investors, we do the same in our own portfolios, with agility and focus.”
